

Javascript Basic Assignment

- 1] Declare a variable, assign a value to it, and display it.
- 2] Take one textbox. Let user enter his name and display that name after click on button named "Show My Name".
- 3] Take one textbox. Let user enter any random number and display the factorial of that number after click on button named "Factorial".
- 4] Take two text-boxes. Let user enter temperature in Celsius and display conversion to Fahrenheit in another text-box after click on button named "Converter".
- 5] Take one text-box. Let user enter any random string and display the reverse string after click on button named "Reverse me".
- 6] Take one text-box. Let user enter any random string and display the length of string after click on button named "My length".
- 7] Take one button. Display today's day after click on button.
- 8] Take one text-box. Let user enter any random date and display the difference between user entered date and today's date after click on button named "Date difference".
- 9] Accept first name, middle name and last name from user. Prompt user to enter the choice, take confirmation from user before proceeding. Alert user with the choice he entered and the name corresponding to that choice.
- 10] Write a program to illustrate the concept of: Prime numbers, Armstrong numbers, Palindrome numbers and strings, Printing a multiplication table using arrays.